LABORATORY RESULTS OF HOST FROM ST. ANTHONY CHURCH

A biochemical analysis of a host from St. Anthony Catholic Church in Morris, IN, that was displaying red discoloration revealed the presence of a common bacteria found on all humans. No presence of human blood was discovered. The host had fallen out of a Mass kit used at the parish, and when it was discovered, red spots were present. Following the policy established by the Holy See, the host was submitted for professional, biochemical analysis at a local laboratory. The results indicate the presence of fungus and three different species of bacteria, all of which are commonly found on human hands. Throughout the history of the Catholic Church, there have been well-documented miracles and apparitions, and each has been thoroughly and carefully reviewed.
